Mark is a Partner at Lagerlof, LLP specializing in litigation and appellate.

Mark has represented financial institutions, businesses and entrepreneurs in a wide variety of litigation for over 40 years. His business litigation practice has included real property purchases and financing, investment fraud, import/export transactions and partnership disputes. Mark's banking practice has included consumer class actions, lender liability disputes, negotiable instruments cases, and commercial lending matters.

He and his team have also defended thousands of state and federal lender liability cases throughout California and the Pacific Northwest. One of those cases resulted in a precedent setting decision from the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that national banks for purposes of federal court jurisdiction are citizens only of the state where they have designated their main office.

Mark enjoys fly fishing, golf, tennis, and spending time with family. Devoted to community service, Mark has served as a mayor and councilman for a nearby city as well as a trustee of three school boards.
